Description

A good solid set of 8 Jacobean revival dining chairs which includes two carvers with a well detailed stretch facing between the turned legs. This set from the early half of the last century look great and have a most fashionable amount of wear to the upholstery. They can of course be reupholstered in your own choice of material if required should this look not be to your taste. The timber is all in good condition and there is no reason why these will not last another 100 years at least. The sizes given for width and depth are on the seat and the carvers are 58cms wide and 48deep on the seat. A good set of chairs that would sit well with a refectory table perhaps, very keenly priced for 8 too.
