Francis Wall (1890-1981) was born in Keighley, and lived in his latter years at Grove Road, Menston, near Ilkley. He was descended from the Listers of Shibden Hall, near Halifax, although his mother had a centuries old connection with the Wharfedale area. He was educated privately and pre-1914 studied art in London, then at St. Ives, learning from the St Ives Group of artists. He also travelled to Belgium, where he studied art with Luyten, a Belgian painter, who lived near Antwerp. Francis served in the Army as an officer during WW1 and after the war studied art formally at the Westminster School of Art, where he studied under ...
