Description

This highly decorative and impressive 19th century Indian carved padauk wood cabinet is profusely carved with fine foliate detail throughout. The figured top has a raised decorative back panel. Below there is a shaped frieze with acanthus leaf carving. The pair of central doors are bow-fronted with arched panels and pierced carving of trailing foliage flanked by decorative pilasters with similar arrangement of flat-fronted doors and matching pilasters to each side. The shaped plinth has a carved foliate design which stands on decorative feet carved in the form of seated lions. Good colour and patination. Good condition. Circa 1850
