Description

Gillows of Lancaster: A superb quality and particularly fine REGENCY period solid rosewood CANTERBURY (or magazine rack) in very good condition. Of iconic X-frame shape (reputably designed by Loudon) it features four divisions with carved "laurel" motifs and a mahogany lined frieze drawer with unusual carved handles. It is supported on very pretty carved and fluted melon-shaped legs terminating in fine quality cast brass castors. A very fine example indeed.  Most furniture by the firm of Gillows is not signed, so what leads us to firmly accredit this piece? The quality is indisputable (as with all Gillows); the fluted shaped legs are typical, and the first class cast brass castors are all significant factors. However, the carved solid handles to the drawer are affixed by integral wooden screw-threads; an undisputed Gillows characteristic.
