Description

This is the finest quality solid mahogany Georgian table that we have seen in decades and it is in exemplary original condition having come from a private country estate where it has been looked after for many generations. Details of provenance will be supplied to the purchaser. The table is very heavy and robust and was made by hand in around 1810. The deep solid mahogany top with shaped bullnose edge and with lovely rich colour and no damage or significant dents or marks. This is superb quality mahogany, beautifully grained and having developed a wonderful rich colour. Seating six very comfortably and eight depending on the width of your chairs (and guests) and with plenty of knee and leg room. The top can be tilted when the table needs to be put out of the way - or to Hoover beneath! - and the mechanism is original. The table top, though heavy, tilts smoothly upward and is so perfectly balanced when tilted that it has to be given a good pull to bring it back down to level again - so no chance of it falling over. Georgian craftsman had had generations of experience to understand the physics of these mechanisms and the base is so weighty that the table is compl...
