Description

An extremely well painted watercolour depicting an Egyptian street seller bartering over the sale of his fruit, depicted in the doorway to his humble abode, seen sitting on a yellow, red and grey striped shawl, with an assortment of fruit filling his wicker woven baskets. - The buyer seen with a spouted water vessel, sits patiently on a chair, with a rosey apple in his left hand, proposing a suitable price to the wise old grey bearded man who listens intently. - A large basket of ripe pineapples are painted with great detail in the background, with an oak shelving unit shown within the left hand inside of the doorway. - The distinct bright yellow blanket brightens up the whole scene, and adds a spark of realism. - The overall standard of painting is top quality and worthy of the best collectors of fine watercolour art, with the subject matter being a desirable and interesting subject showing dailey life on the side streets of Cairo. - CONDITION The Watercolour is in very good order with the colours still bright and radiant. - FRAME A lovely wooden frame finished principally in a shiney black and dark rosewood inner veneer, with gold coloured decoration highlighting the outer & inner...
