Description

Victorian mahogany 12 seat extending dining table This Victorian mahogany 12 seat extending dining table was made circa 1870. This dining table has rounded ends and rolls out using the fantastically engineered extending mechanism. This is done very easily manually using a winding handle. The table stands on 4 marvellous carved and turned solid mahogany legs, that finish with the original brass cups with porcelain wheels. You can use this table with any combination of leaves. This allows you to extend the table to suit your seating requirements. Tables of this style and quality are not freely available on the market, especially of this desirable shape and size. We have restored this dining table and re-polished it by hand in the traditional manner. Imagine sitting and entertaining at this beautiful dining table. In these days of diesel driven delivery vehicles, it is easy to forget how much trouble and time it took to deliver this when it first went into service into a large home of a successful entrepreneur or professional family. As this was before the advent of the combustion engine, it would have been loaded onto an enclosed wagon by porters who then drove horse dra...
