Description

A 17th century English chest of drawers constructed from oak and having three drawers, each decorated with geometric shaped molded panels and split turnings, with wrought iron ring handles. The drawers are divided by two long moldings and to the top of the chest is a heavy molded cornice and to the bottom is a heavy molded skirt which hangs above four turned bun feet, the rear consisting of half buns. The chest has a fantastic rich dark patina and is in excellent condition.
