Description

This is an antique architect's desk with adjustable top. English, Georgian, mahogany draughtsman's or cartographer's desk dating to the early 19th century, circa 1810. A versatile and charming architect or cartographer's desk. Fashioned from rich mahogany with grain interest throughout. Of quality craftsmanship with good, consistent colour in the wax polished finish. Adjustable writing surface features a movable paper stay. Crossbanded border, moulded edge profile and inset writing surface. Finished in a British green, leather skiver highlighted with gold tooling. Large over-knee drawer to front dressed with turned pulls. Fitted with working lock and key, through brass keyhole lining. Field panel doors to each side, fitted with brass locks, key absent. Cupboard doors reveal a suite of nine document compartments (d:65cm [25.5"], h:49cm [19.25"]). Generous knee hole at a height of 65.5cm (25.75"). Riding upon eight, original brass castors for easy repositioning, sitting beneath a plinth base. This is a splendid, antique architect's desk with solid joints and construction. Delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home. Dimensions: Max Width: 103cm (40.5") Max Depth: 70cm (27....
