Description

Antique oak dresser base This Antique oak dresser base was made in the late 19th century. This Antique oak pot board dresser that we are offering you are known as pot board dressers as they have the planked surface running under that were to stack pots and pans etc for the dressers use in a domestic setting. In these modern times this feature makes it less bulky in appearance and so very good for use in a hall, drawing room, or dining area. The dresser base has an arrangement of crossbanded drawers with the original brass ring handles above a shaped frieze. The frieze has finely turned front supports joined the pot board. The solid oak top has a channel inset along the back for plates to be displayed. Imagine how good this will look in your home where it can be used in so many settings. This type of dresser would have had plate racks fitted but over time the fashion changed, and the racks were separated away so that the owners could use it without them. 152.5cms wide 60ins 40cms deep 16ins 76cms high 30ins This is a finite item that is a very green product that has not affected our environment.
