Description

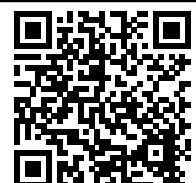

A set of 12 single & 2 carver Regency mahogany dining chairs, made from the finest timber (probably entering the country via Whitehaven) known as Whitehaven Timber and used by firms in the north of England, Gillows of Lancaster being a strong possibility. One chair now has a later back as it had been cut to be used as a stool. Good long sets of chairs of this quality are few and far between and never cheap when discovered. English c.1810-15
