Description

This is an antique elbow chair. An English, Victorian, oak and leather carver armchair dating to the mid-19th century, circa 1870. Attractive carved oak displaying darkness of tone, quality grain and fine colour. Of quality craftsmanship with attractive proportions. Beautifully crafted displaying a desirable aged patina. Solidly jointed and robust – ideal for daily use. Delightfully carved back-splat rising to a pierced, shaped crest rail. Strong supportive arms with hand-carved detailing. Traditionally upholstered, leather stuff-over seat pad with studded brass finish. Generous in size and offering a useful 51cm (20.1") seat height. Established on a well-braced box and 'H' stretcher for stability. The baluster turned fore stretcher displaying good colouration. This is a masterful antique elbow chair with a comfortable leather seat. Solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
