Description

A pair of large 19thC garden urns. Hand cast in either coade stone or buff terracotta with many layers of old paint, which is faded cracked and chipped, which reflects their age. Some restorations particularly to the bowl of the right hand urn (see photos) The restoration work is solid and not an issue unless you are looking for perfection. The bases have lions mask decoration on four sides. There are three sections to each being base, socle and urn. One socle is hollow the other solid. The hollow bases show the finger impressions of the worker who cast them (see photos). The paint colour appears to be a faded French grey ie a grey white. A very good size for a formal grand terrace. Urn diameter 48 cm Overall height 93 cm bases 37.5 square
