Description

Early C20th verdigris bronze bust or head study of a Greek God or Spartan . Striking cast bronze study of a classical bearded God or perhaps a Spartan mounted on an iron and wooden base. Well-detailed hollow casting with a verdigris patinated 'faux-excavation' finish. The thickly-bearded male study with tousled curly hair and wearing a tightly-bound head band or fillet . The strong masculine features well-defined and modelled with the eyes pierced open . The bronze head mounted upon an iron rod onto a laminated and unpolished oak base. A powerful study with superb presence and classical decorative appeal . H 19" W 10" D 10" Greece c. 1920
