Description

Edward Cooper, LONDON: a particularly fine and thoroughly original 18th century mahogany LONGCASE CLOCK in full working order. The CASE is typical of the finest cabinetmaking to be found in London during the second and third quarters of the 18th century with its 'pagoda' pediment to the hood; brass-inlaid columns flanking the hood door; and a long arch-top trunk door veneered in superb "flame" mahogany. This is flanked by quartered columns, also inlaid with brass, above unusual cross-banded plinths. The base features the typical separate "flame" mahogany panel to the front, which and moulded double plinths. The 8-day MOVEMENT strikes the hours on a bell and retains its original brass pendulum and pair of brass-cased weights whilst the good dial features engraved and silvered chapter-rings; "Strike/Silent" control in the arch; subsidiary seconds dial and date aperture above "VI". It is signed by the maker to the engraved plate, which is applied to the matted centre of the dial. A stunning and superb quality 18th century London Longcase clock!
