Antonio Zoppi (1860-1926) was an Italian painter, mostly of genre and costume scenes, as well as landscapes. He was born and resident in Novara. In 1881 at Milan he exhibited: Paggio del secolo XVI. In 1881 at Rome he exhibited: Fate la carità e In vino laetitia. To other exhibitions he sent: Winter Sun; Dolci ricordi; Il nonno; Adele; Study of a head; A landscaper of Tobacco; and Savoy and Winter Morning. Vendemmia was exhibited at the Brera Academy in 1822.[1] Another painter by the same name was born in Piacenza on April 8, 1826. He was a decorative painter and one depicting quadratura.[2] Among his works: a quadratura painting inside the house of Dezzopis; a garden in the house of signor Filippo Guas...
