Description

An absolutely charming example of a late 19th century miniature Windsor chair. This exquisite Victorian armchair has a curved top rail supported by two turned uprights and three spindles, and has a shaped seat supported by turned tapering legs — the front two of which are united by a stretcher. It retains its original paint-stain finish with an abundance of character and the most attractive glowing patination. It is English c1880 to c1900. . . .
