Description

A fine late 17th century side table of fine colour and patination and of small proportions. The table is constructed from oak and has a single drawer with its original lock and key escutcheon with the original handles too. The table had finely turned baluster legs with peripheral stretchers and terminating on turned feet. The richly patinated plank top having a molded edge and to the left hand side stamped with owners initials T.D and also twice again to the left and right front legs. The table has some slight play in the joints commiserate with age but otherwise is in fantastic condition.
