Description

An Eighteenth Century Georgian oak dresser base; the oak dresser has three frieze drawers above a central bank of graduated drawers flanked by a panelled cupboard door to either side and is raised on the original bracket feet. The dresser's drawers have ogee mouldings typical of the early Georgian period and the ends are panelled- a sign of quality. This oak dresser is a fantastic size at over 6' long and it offers plenty of storage making it perfect for a kitchen or boot room. Circa 1730.
