Description

Edwardian walnut dining table This Edwardian walnut dining table was made circa 1910 and we attribute this to have been made in the workshops of Waring and Gillow. Famous cabinetmaking company Gillow ran into financial trouble in the late 19th century and so joined with Warings of Liverpool and were registered in 1903. Thus, continuing making furniture of the best quality. It winds out on a patent winding mechanism using a handle to take 2 leaf insertions to allow you to seat 8-10 comfortably. At present we have the matching set of 8 dining chairs in stock. At each corner is a solid walnut cabriole leg with pad feet. At the knee there is a delicate decorative carved motif. The top with a round top that has a good cross-banding with herringbone design running around the border of this. Golden burr walnut veneers were chosen to be used for the top match and so give a wonderful effect. This table can be used closed or with one or both leaves in place. It gives you fantastic flexibility whether you are having intimate dining or something less so. Imagine entertaining around this wonderful dining table and the complimentary comments you will receive. There is nothing like ente...
