Description

This is an antique showcase cabinet. An English, walnut and bronze display piece of museum quality and dating to the late 19th century, circa 1900. Generous proportions and displays a desirable aged patina. Select cuts of walnut offer fine grain interest and rich hues. Bronze upper cabinet with original, large glass panes. Dressed with a working lock mechanism, key present. Cabinet base is removable and finished in cream cotton fabric. A pair of cabinet doors, dressed with working brass lock escutcheons, keys present. Field panel doors operated by wooden pulls. Door jambs with original velvet dust seals - a further sign of the quality of the cabinetry. Cabinet has been previously prepared for lighting. Internally ventilated to maintain ambient temperature. Raised upon a stout, continuous plinth base. This is a magnificent antique display cabinet, perfect for an institution or collector. Solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
