Description

A beautiful and impressively large is this original sculpture from the first half of the last century by Ugo Cipriani. Depicting a figure of a woman with a bird on her shoulder. The sculpture is signed on the base URIANO. Made from spelter and cold painted with the most beautiful detailing, often these details degrade over the years but this one has remained vibrant. The base is solid multi coloured marble. The two metal sculptures show a beautiful age-related patina. The impressive geometric worked marble base has some signs of age over the decades none of which is unsightly and only mentioned for accuracy. weight 8.3 kg About the Artist Ugo Cipriani, born in Florence, Italy on August 13, 1887, died in Paris on June 18, 1960, is an Italian sculptor. Son of the sculptor Adolfo Cipriani and Emilia Pancani. After studying at the Florence Academy of Fine Arts, Ugo Cipriani works in the spirit of the 1920's Art Deco movement. One of his most famous works, a bronze monument (1919) by the Italian nationalist and irredentist Guglielmo Oberdan is on the square of the same name in Florence. In 1935, Ugo Cipriani emigrated to France to escape the fascist regime of Mussolini. He live...
