Description

A fine 18th century velvet upholstered wing back chair. Having a deep seat and ribbed back and standing on ball and claw feet with square sabre legs at the back. The legs have a good cruddy patina and the left back leg has had a break at some stage where a metal plate has been introduced, Thought the leg has had a break the chair is solid. The velvet on the chair is quite faded in places and would benefit from being reupholstered or could be left as it is i its current country house state. This is a fabulous looking chair and would suit any period home. Seat height 45cm Seat depth 58cm Seat width 58cm tapering to 42cm
