Description

A good set of Regency hall chairs by Williams & Gibton of Dublin; in mahogany of the original colour and patina; well carved backs and turned front legs. The armorial is of an unclothed arm holding aloft an arrow and has a blue and yellow twisted base, it is the crest of the Irish branch of the Baker family. The chairs are stamped by the maker. The Irish firm of Williams and Gibton (1830-44) are listed as Cabinetmakers, Upholders, Auctioneers, Valuers and House agents. They evolved from the well known firm of Mack, Williams and Gibton (1811-29) who were at 39 Stafford Street, Dublin and were appointed 'Upholsterer's & Cabinet Makers to his Majesty, His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant and His Majesty's Board of Works' in 1806. They supplied for some of the most important public buildings in Ireland, including the Four Courts, the War Office, the Barracks Office, Dublin Castle, the Chapel Royal and the Treasury and Viceregal Lodge. Simultaneously they were commissioned to produce furniture for many of the Irish country houses, such as Ballynegall, Co. Westmeath, Oakley Park, Co. Meath and Strokestown, Co. Roscommon. Circa 1830
