Description

Edwardian mahogany 3 leaf extending dining table This Edwardian mahogany 3 leaf dining table was made circa 1900. I attribute this high-quality dining to have been made in the workshops of Waring and Gillow. Tables of this quality were very expensive when they were first made and so there were only limited numbers ever made. There were other companies that made tables of a similar design but rarely were they made to this standard. The table of oval shape with delightful leaf and ribbon carving around the edge. It winds out on a patented mechanism (it was patented in the Victorian era) and as with most things of the period it was engineered to high specification. To each corner are the magnificent cabriole legs that stand on claw and ball feet with its castors under, at the top of the leg you have the fine carved acanthus design. As the table has 3 extra leaves you can wind it out to fit the size of table you require, you can use any combination of leaves to suit. We have used our experienced restorer of nearly 25 years experience to bring this table to the fine condition it is now to be ready for your home. Imagine how wonderful this will look in your home as you entertain...
