SoldItem Reference: SA66616*Date of manufacture: 1870

Description

An outstanding and highly decorative inkwell dating to around 1870 and English in origin. It's a hefty piece weighing in at around 2 1/2 pounds or well over a kilo, top-notch quality. The spherical inkwell is topped with four ball finial and a central torch flame. The panels to the lid and the base are beautifully pierced, if put with light behind the cobalt blue liner shows through the base. Again the base is a riot of ornate cast brass standing on two different pairs of feet, either side of the base is mounted with a cast grotesque face or mask. The hinged lid opens to reveal the glass liner as mentioned about, removable for easy filling and cleaning. A magnificent desk-top accessory in superb condition. The base measures 7 1/4" x 6 7/8" and stands 6 1/2" tall. Item ID: 31729
