Description

Unusual design late Regency Irish mahogany, basically square occasional table. The table is finished all round with needlework panels to all sides and the top. The table has very finely turned and carved legs with original castors to the bottom. It is a most unusual design with the needlework panels which are behind glass. As you can see it turns up beautifully underneath. With the design of the legs I am pretty sure this is from the County Cork area of Ireland. The table is in good condition with no damage or repairs. SIZE; 17" by 16" by 30 1/2" high CIRCA; 1820 - 1830
