Description

An excellent and high quality Edwardian mahogany Regulator longcase clock with Westminster and Whittington Chime. The movement is of 8 day duration and strikes the quarter hours on seven chrome plated tubular rods hanging from the rear of the case and the main hour on a larger singular rod. Also featuring Westminster and Whittington chime selection and a strike/silent mechanism. The movement is of the highest quality and has thick brass plates, deadbeat escapement and maintaining power. Its very likely that the clock movements were supplied to Maple & Co by Smiths & Sons of Clerkenwell, London. A very well known and successful Clockmaker also working during this period. The unusually painted convex dial is signed by the retailer Maple & Co, London. Also with Roman numerals and matching blued steel hands. The very substantial, high quality and mahogany case both veneered and of solid mahogany construction. The case has a long trunk door enclosing three large brass weights and a pendulum. The whole case depicts an Ionic column and capital which is carved in solid mahogany below the main dial. The base features a shaped plinth and an applied ogee moulding to the main p...
