Description

These two small whistles are beautifully hand turned in bone. One is a miniature of the other. They are a rare survivor. This type of item was made as a past time by French prisoners held in England at the time of the Napoleonic wars. Often such items were made on a larger more complex scale such as working models, or miniature ships and boats often from bone as this was one of the only material available. Circa 1820 Larger whistle 5cm w x 1.5 h x 1.5 d Smaller 2.5 x 0.5 x 0.5
