Description

A lovely antique Piano Stool made from walnut with an upholstered seat. The stool stands on three splayed legs with a central turned baluster support. It is nicely upholstered and displays well but could of course be re-upholstered to suit. It can be adjusted in height by spinning the seat around to move it up or down. At its lowest adjustable position it is 20" (51cm) and at its highest adjustable position it is approximately 24" (61cm). The bottom of one leg is stamped for the maker "H.Brooks & Co" and below the seat is a retailer's plaque for Hamilton & Co Bristol. It is in good condition for its age. There is a small mark on the upholstery but it is generally clean and free from any rips or major wear. The revolving mechanism runs smoothly with very minimal give side to side and when extended upwards the stool is very stable. The wood has developed a nice aged patina. It is free from any major knocks or splits and is overall a sturdy construction. There are some small marks and minor knocks around the base but nothing detrimental and it displays beautifully and is certainly a very usable piece.
