Description

This walnut stretcher table from around the turn of the century, 19th to 20th, is in very good condition with good colour and grain. It has twin pillars on each end which boast good reeding in the turnings and a well detailed stretcher between them. A versatile table that could sit in many locations. It can of course be used as a side table but also as a games table and possible use as a small dining table. The interior is also very tidy, no rips or cuts in the lining and very minor signs of wear or use. A good looking clean item that is keenly priced in this condition.
