Description

This rare pair of late 19th century North American miniature leather and suede moccasins have been superbly hand made replicating a larger pair that would have been commonly worn by tribal members at this time. These wonderful miniature ones were finely made by the tribal community to be sold as souvenirs from the late 19th century when warriors from some of the great tribes were taking part in traveling wild west shows around England in Europe. These rare survivors are in very good condition and would add interest to any collection. £325
