Description

Early C20th Chinese temple-style bronze gong on lacquered stand . Decorative lacquer and gilt Chinese stand with carved detail , supporting a large polished bronze gong of ceremonial design. The 'collapsible' stand allowing for ease of transportation and movement. The top section with a cresting bar , centred by a well-detailed carved dragon's mask , the uprights and supports with carved and gilded detail. The body of the stand decorated in deep purple lacquer and aged gilding , the mask with parcel-gilt and painted details. The polished bronze circular gong with a boss or nipple centre , this type of gong producing a tuned note when struck , as opposed to the 'crashed' note of a flat surfaced hanging gong . Supplied with 2 original striking 'hammers', which create an excellent deep ,resonating atmospheric tone from the gong when struck . Highly decorative unusual Oriental exotic item which would add exoticism to a decorative scheme . Ideal for a hotel or dining room to summon the attention of guests.
