Description

Edwardian mahogany butterfly Sutherland table This Edwardian mahogany butterfly Sutherland table was made during the reign of Edward VII circa 1900 The cabinetmaker selected fine grade mahogany to make this table. It is of a great size and the elegant butterfly wing shape and can be used with just one drop flap in place. When it is closed it can easily be placed against the wall if you wish. The underframe has shaped ends that are joined by a beautifully turned stretcher, with fine cabriole legs that swing out to give support to each leaf. 69cms wide 27ins 82cms wide open 32 1/4ins 65cms high 25ins 19cms deep closed 7 1/2ins All dimensions are approximate. This Edwardian mahogany butterfly Sutherland table is an item of antique furniture that is a very green product that has not affected the environment we live in.
