Description

My love of 19th century vanity-bags ('chanteh' in Persian) has always been a passion since I first set eyes on one back in the 1980s. Having handled many since then, I have rarely found one made by the Kurds. This gorgeous little chanteh was made by Sanjabi Kurds towards the latter part of the 19th century. The bag is woven in a technique known as extra weft wrapping which gives it a very strong and resilient feel. The bag is complete with plain-weave back. Size: 23cm x 20cm (9" x 8").
