Description

Exceptional C19th near pair oak and leather library chairs of eccentric design; from the important suite of furniture supplied to the Earl of Lindsey in 1844/45 by Thomas Turner. The shaped top rail with a pair of well carved, large ram's heads and centred by the coat of arms of the Bertie family, surmounted by an Earl's coronet. The buttoned leather padded back leading to the lotus and acanthus leaf carved, scrolled arms on tapering turned supports. The buttoned leather padded seat with the frame having multiple applied cabochon; raised on tapering reeded legs, centred with unusual square blocks having further cabochon; with square swept legs to the rear, on original brass cup castors, stamped Cope and Collinson Patent. English circa 1845 Very good condition, newly upholstered in good quality black leather, with piped edges and close brass studding. Dimensions (ins) 44.5 high x 25 wide x (one is 27, one is 28 deep); seat height 17 Interestingly there are subtle differences in these chairs, mainly the scroll where the back joins the arm; one having acanthus carving, the other having lotus carving. Provenance: Supplied to George Bertie, 10th Earl of Lindsey, Uffington...
