Description

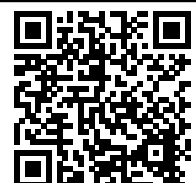

This fabulous salt-bag is one of the earliest of Afshar work. Woven on the face in intricate weft-float brocade, the colour palette is subtle and beautiful. Shades of blue, red, green and yellow dominate the field. The back is woven in simple madder-red plain-weave with one narrow band of weft-float brocade running horizontally. This is a very important salt-bag, quite possibly made circa 1850-1870, and is highly collectable. Size: 46cm x 56cm (1' 6" x 1' 10").
