Description

A Victorian iron framed armchair, circa 1880, with spoon shaped iron back deep buttoned and upholstered in green velvet, the sprung seat with serpentine shaped front and raised on bulbous front supports with brass and porcelain castors. A very comfortable chair of good proportions, the springs are good and the seat is smooth with no lumps, the fabric is vintage cotton velvet and is serviceable although shows signs of wear, particularly on the arms. There is one button missing from the button back (I can possibly get this replaced). The castors, although Victorian are replacements although as they are under the skirt are not visible. I can arrange re-covering with my upholsterer, please contact me for further details. Please see my other listing for another similar chair in the same upholstery. Height of back 87cm, the seat measures 52cm across the front, 63cm deep and 32cm high.
