Description

Queen Anne walnut bureau bookcase This Queen Anne walnut bureau bookcase made circa 1705 with the lovely and most desirable feature of the 'double dome' with a further dome to the return. Usually these bureau bookcases have mirror plate doors, but our example has the rare feature deep fielded shaped panels. Above the sloping fall are the sliding candle slides each with a brass knob pull. The sloping fall with burr walnut with herringbone inlay opens to reveal a stepped interior with double concave drawers and a cupboard, a sliding well that contain secret sections. The cupboard doors to the top open to reveal a fitted interior with pigeon-holes and bookshelves, this always adds to the look and adds even more interest as it can be left open to display fine books and porcelain. Finally, the Queen Anne walnut bureau bookcase stands on later well-turned solid walnut feet 227cms high 89 1/4ins 58.5cms deep 23ins 97cms wide 38ins All measurements are approximate This Queen Anne walnut bureau bookcase is an item of antique furniture that is a very green product that has not affected the environment we live in.
