Description

A wonderful pair of circular-topped low tables in solid English oak. Made as stools, they make ideal occasional tables or coffee tables by virtue of having perfectly flat tops — not the usual dished type or saddle-form tops. They have square-section slightly angled legs all of which are united by stretchers, and are sturdy and structurally sound. These eminently useful pieces of English furniture — fit for any room in the home — would also double up as bedside tables. They are early/mid 20th century and retain an original finish with a gloriously rich colour. . . .
