Description

An elegant small and good quality antique late Victorian fold over games or card table in mahogany and dating from circa 1890. The oblong top above a pelmet and under tier, supported by cabriole legs with carved knees. In a well figured mahogany the table top folds out to reveal a green baize topped surface for playing cards. It has a space within the table for storing cards, dice etc when the table top folds over as well as an undershelf for board games etc. A highly portable, attractive and functional piece of antique furniture that could be simply used as a hall table or occasional games table. Construction/Wood: Mahogany Condition Report: Good condition, solid and sturdy. Baize in good condition. Partial split along the fold over section of the table top, but solid.
