Description

Georgian style mahogany 3 pillar dining table. This Georgian style mahogany 3 pillar dining table was made circa 1910. This Regency style mahogany 12 seat dining table was made circa 1910 by a cabinetmaker using period timber. At this time, there was plenty of redundant timber that was available to upcycle into this elegant dining table using the Georgian timber on offer. The cabinetmaker had a superb eye for the best design and proportion as he made this table in the Georgian style, using a design that has been placed in fine homes since the late 18th century. This elegant table will look fantastic in your home. The table top has a good wide crossbanding running around the outer edge using boxwood stringing to the edge and box with black line inlay to the inner edge of the crossbanding. The table stands on 3 mahogany pedestals with moulded reed legs coming off the gun barrel turned supports. At the end of each leg is a cast brass toe with brass rolling castors under. This is a table that will seat 12-14 comfortably. Imagine entertaining around this superb dining table with your families and friends, it can only enhance your dining experience.
