Fine quality early 19th century Regency brass inlaid rosewood card table. All veneered on mahogany with lovely grain Rio rosewood. The top with double brass inlaid line and cross grain edges. Small platform base with low swept legs with original brass lion castors. Early type square column with turned moulding decoration. The freize section of the table has a nice deisgn brass inlay to the front and line inlays elsewhere. The top swings round and opens up with a green baize interior. There is a storage section when the top is swung round underneath. The table is in very good clean condition with no breaks to the legs and no other damage that I can see.
