Description

Rare mid C19th patinated bronzed copper vase of neo-classical design . Large-scale copper swollen round-bodied vase with bronzed patination and angular handles to the neck . Raised on a circular foot the main body of the vase of bulbous form with a tapering neck above . The shaped and reeded handles with distinctive cast conch-shell to the shoulders , and cast classical motifs on their terminals to the neck and body . The circular top edge with a flared moulding corresponding to the base foot-ring . Consistent dark bronzed patina to the copper , with some minor historic dents and dings to the body which indistinctly reveal the copper construction beneath. Impressive classically-inspired decorative centrepiece of strong form and proportions , echoing the ancient civilisations of Greece and Rome . H 18" W 14" D 14" Probably English c. 1830
