Description

A Georgian era mahogany drop flap table standing on turned legs with original castors dated to c1800. It has a single drawer opening on one side. There's a dummy drawer front on the reverse side. The drawer is lined with original blue paper typical for the Georgian period. The drop flaps are supported by pull out supports which are neatly tucked in when the flaps are down. Really lovely colour and patina and a very cared for piece which needed no repairs, just a nice clean and polish. The table measures 91cm when the flaps are opened up.
