Description

A lovely Art Deco desk calendar in a solid silver frame on an ebonised wooden base. It's a beautifully made desk calendar that has a great look. It has two metal knobs on the underside that turn the date cards and month cards. It also has two other knobs on the back which slide along a red line which can be moved to cross off the days of the month. The frame is clearly hallmarked for Birmingham and W.J. Myatt & Co. The date letter O is hard to distinguish between 1913 or 1938. It's in good condition for its age. The silver frame has some small dents and marks here and there (see photos) but nothing major and the wooden base is in good order. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions please ask. Tracked UK delivery £5, rest of the world £15.
