Description

Early C19th Regency period brass-mounted rosewood octagonal topped occasional table. Smart English Regency period rosewood table in the French taste. The scroll legged tripod base with box-wood line inlay , with patinated gilt-brass mounts to the shoulders. The base of the column with cast gilded-brass foliate vertical mounts , and the stem with concave brass flutes. The well-figured rosewood octagonal design top with alternating lines of brass and boxwood stringing . The reverse of the top fitted with an original brass 'banjo' catch which allows the table to be tipped or tilted when not in use . A stylish high Regency design table executed in the French taste , possibly drawing its influences from the work and designs of Louis Constantin Le Gaigneur , a Frenchman who had workshops in Queen St., London , producing Louis XIV style brass-mounted and boulle furniture. In excellent original condition, with wonderful rich colour and patina to the top . H 28" W 23" W 23" England c. 1815
