Description

A 19th century French marble and gilded mantel clock. It has an eight day movement striking both the hours and half hours on a bell. The charming female figure, possibly depicting Ceres, goddess of agriculture and fertility. She has a snake bangle on her left arm. The clock has the mark of Le Roy and sons Paris. There are some hairline cracks on the dial next to the left hand winding hole (see last image) and a chip to the marble which has been reapplied just above a foot (see image 6). The movement has been cleaned and it is going well. A very decorative clock and sculpture.
