Description

A nice example of an English 19th Century dry card pocket compass in its original wooden case. The compass has a traditional black and white face with blue compass needle and a button for steadying it. The compass is covered in glass with a nice quality brass rim. The hinged wooden case is in nice condition with a metal closing latch. It appears to be in working order but is really being sold as a decorative / collectors item rather than an accurate scientific item. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions at all please ask. Tracked UK delivery £5, rest of the world £20.
