Description

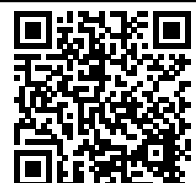

This is an antique embroidered silk panel. An Oriental, chestnut and glass brocante decorative frieze, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1900. Beautiful craftsmanship throughout Displays a desirable aged patina Broad chestnut frame shows fine grain interest Glass panel in good order with clear, bright optics Presenting a bouquet of spring flowers, visited by passing butterflies Eye-catching yellow petals with three-dimensional silk folds Each butterfly distinct in its colour and patterns Verdant green leaves sit against an attractive blue ground Striking chestnut frame with deep ovular moulding Contrasting border in golden tones complements the whole Pleasingly heavy decorative frieze, can be displayed in portrait or landscape Hanging loops to the rear, with a smaller lower pair for securing in place This is a fascinating antique embroidered silk panel, with superb foliate scenes and colourful butterflies. The chestnut frame offers rich russet hues and quality grain interest. Delivered waxed, polished and ready for display.
